LARGE OIL COMPANY BUYS

1000 Barrel Refining Plant
in East St. Louis Being Moved to Kentucky.

In the issue of May 25, last of the Bankers Journal attention was called to the operation of the McCombs Oil Company in Eastern Kentucky. Based upon the comprehensive plans of the company at that time, its extensive acreage in the proven fields of Estill, Wolfe, Morgan, Knott, Allen and Lee Counties together with the high character of the company's management led the Journal to predict that the McCombs Oil Company become one of the leading independent oil companies in the state. Subsequent developments have given ample confirmation to this prediction.

In pursuance of its policy of expansion and development in the interest of the shareholders and to insure a larger earning capacity on its capitalization the McCombs Oil Company has recently completed the purchase of the 1,000 barrel plant of the Consolidated Oil Refining Company, at East St. Louis. It is now engaged in moving the entire plant to Torrent, Kentucky, on the main line of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, within three miles from its producing properties in Wolfe County, to which it is being connected by its own pipe line. The product of the wells will reach the refinery by gravity.

To care for and market the finished product the company is having built under contract with the Alleghany Steel Tank Car Co. of Warren, Pa., thirty steel tank cars with a capacity of 8050 gallons each.

Meantime production from wells already having a consistent record of production and many new wells which are constantly being brought in through the active drilling campaign inaugurated by the Company.

WITH THE HOME BOYS IN SERVICE

In Trenches for Third Time.

Pvt. W. C. Mattingly, one of the Breckinridge county boys stationed with Co. M., 6th Infantry, overseas, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mattingly, of Hardinsburg, and who is experiencing trench life for the third time. He writes:

Dear Mother, Dad, and All:—I received Cora's and Elizabeth's letters and as usual was glad to hear from home and to know that all are well and getting along all right. Hope when you receive this letter you will be well as I am getting along fine and well. I am in the trenches for the third time and don't know how long I will have to stay before we get relieved but I don't mind being here for there is not much doing where we are. We have not had a battle yet.

You asked me what kind of a time I had the Fourth of July. I had some time as we were on the Alps mountains and it was cold. We drew overcoats and another blanket and they felt good too. It has never been too hot but what our O. D. clothes feel good and the blankets at night. It does not seem like summer over here, don't know whether it is or not.

I am sure glad to hear that the crops have in the good old U. S. A. are good and hope they can have good luck in saving it. I heard that there was an awful big wheat crop too and that sounds good to me. Cora said that sister Maud and the children were at home. I know you all had some good time and I wish I could have been there with you but the day will come, I am in hopes, when we can be together again. And she said she and sister were going to the Mammoth Cave. I do hope they did for that will be something nice for them.

What has become of Bess and Carroll? I have had one letter from her since I have been over here and you never say anything about them. Tell her to please take time and write to me and tell me all the news. And let me know whether you got the money I sent home or not as soon as possible and then I will send some more.

Tell J. C. for him to be a good boy and take good care of Randolph and Carroll and teach them how to walk and talk like he can. I sure would love to see all of you but of course I can't.

Well I have told all the news and will have to close for this time. With lots and lots of love and all the kisses for all of you, I am as ever your loving boy, brother and uncle.

W. C. Mattingly.

SCHOOL NEWS AND VIEWS

By J. Raleigh Mader, Superintendent.

Do you keep a course of study always on your desk? Do you refer to it frequently? Do you know that your classes in arithmetic, history, geography, hygiene, english and civics are doing in the second month of school the work prescribed by the course of study to be done in that month? Do you know the grades that should be taught this year and the grades that should be continued this year? Get out that course of study and use it.

Above the fourth you should have only the fifth and seventh grades this year. Keep the enrollment of the sixth and eighth grades intact but do then recite with and do the work of the fifth and seventh grades respectively. Next year you will have the sixth and eighth grades and no fifth or seventh. In this way each pupil gets each grade but the teacher is not required to try to teach all the grades at the same time.

If you fail to follow the course of study this year and your successor next year does follow it some child may miss a whole year's work.

The following letter has been sent to each teacher in the county in part in the census. Let the patrons of these districts join with the teacher in carrying out the work suggested. The Literacy Commission will furnish supplies without cost.

Dear Friend:—The new draft law will call out men between 18 and 45, and among them will be some who cannot read or write. These will be in a sad condition, and you can do no greater patriotic service than to teach them. Any man who goes to the camp illiterate is subjected to untold humiliation. He is expected to sign his name on the roll, to read his orders from a bulletin board, to study a manual and to perform other duties impossible for an uneducated man to perform. Homesickness will overcome him completely during his first few weeks of absence from loved ones unless he can write home and can read his own letters.

You have been wondering what you can do to be heroic, to be patriotic. You may have been wishing that you could help win the war. You can by helping these men. Military authorities say that if the men come to camp able to read and write it shortens their military training three months and makes them

WAGONS

We have just received a car load each of Bain and Weber Wagons. We believe there is no better wagon and few as good, and we know the purchaser of one of these makes is sure of lasting satisfaction.

We have more of these famous wagons due us on contracts placed months ago, but deliveries are uncertain, and we, in the spirit of service advise anyone who expects to need a wagon within the next year to buy now. In so doing he will not only save money but have when he needs it.

GREET YANKS ON WAY TO FRANCE

Royal Welcome at England's Greatest Troop Port.

SPIRIT IMPRESSES BRITONS

"You Can't Lick Men With That Kind of Spirit," Says Old English General—Fever-Stricken Lad Weeps Because Surgeon Refuses to Let Him Proceed With His Company—Crowds See Them Off.

More than 200,000 American soldiers during one month passed through a certain English port en route from America to France via England. It's the greatest troop port in the world. Since the war began, nearly 6,000,000 soldiers of the allies have gone through here to battle the Hun in France.

With the port commandant, an old English general, the correspondent watched the embarkation of 7,000 Yankees here one evening.

They had hiked 13 miles from their camp through a drizzling rain over muddy roads carrying a 40-pound pack on their backs. But they reached the pier shouting and singing with the military band blaring "Over There."

"Lord, what a wonderful spirit," the old general smiled. "You can't lick men with that kind of spirit."

From All Sections.

From California, and other Western states they came. There were a score or more American Indians with their banshee yells mixing in with the general hilarity and hubbub of the Yanks. Even Chinese in the khaki of Uncle Sam were in the lines.

Beside us stood Lieutenant Woods of New York, the United States army ambulance physician, carefully scrutinizing every man as he filed up the gangplank. Suddenly he espied a young lad, pale of face, weak and scarcely able to wobble up the gangplank. It developed the lad had a temperature of 103 degrees and was burning up with fever.

Knowing his unit was going to France, he refused to report sick that morning and he left behind. So, in order to go along to France with his unit for a crack at the Boche, he gamely made the long hike.

"Please let me go on," he begged. "Two looked forward so much to the time when I'd be in France with my unit. Now, at the last moment, I don't want to be separated from them. I'm only a little sick now. I'll be all right soon. Please let me go."

The lad actually broke down and wept when Lieutenant Woods refused and put him in an ambulance for the camp.

"I just wish the Kaiser could see that kind of spirit," said the old English general.

"I often get 'em like that," Lieutenant Woods told us. "Our boys are so darned anxious to get at the Huns they don't want to let sickness or anything else stand in the way. Every blamed one of 'em thinks he personally is going to win the war and there's no stopping or holding 'em. Lord, I'm proud of 'em."

Off for France.

With the military band blaring and the boys up on deck waving and cheering "good-by" the ship slipped out into the harbor en route to France.

"Good-by and good luck," waved the old general. "I hope every blessed one of them comes back safe; but it's hell; some of them won't ever come back."

As we turned to leave the docks we passed hundreds of other marching, singing Yankees, embarking on other boats. Far down the principal street of the town the line of march extended, flanked on either side by cheering, flag-waving crowds—women and children, mostly. Pretty girls stood along the line of march grasping the Yankees' hands. Some grinning lads hung on to them rather tight and pulled them along several steps, laughingly protesting.

From All Sections.

This great English seaport town is ablaze with red, white and blue. From practically every principal building flutters the American flag. In the center of the city's largest park is located an American and British rest camp, accommodating about 7,000. The camp of about 100 galvanized iron structures is flanked by pretty lagoons and ponds, trees and great bushes and flower gardens. The Americans have turned the beauty spot of the town into a rest camp.

HAIG CLOSES ON MESSINES; FOCH GAINS 4 MILES

Tergnier Falls and La Fere Tot-ters as the Allies
Drive Ahead.

YANKEES CLOSE ON ENEMY

French Advance on Twenty-Mile Front, Capturing Lower Forest of Coucy-Laon—Yanks Bring Up
Big Guns in the Battle.

London, Sept. 9.—The French have advanced on a 20-mile front to an average depth of two miles and at some places to a depth of four miles. They occupied Tergnier, three miles from La Fere, without opposition.

The French also reached the forest of Coucy, and now are on a big stretch of entirely new ground.

British progress on practically the whole battle front from Havrincourt wood to the river Aisne continued during the morning with greater rapidity than had been expected.

The British line starting at Havrincourt wood, of which the British occupy practically one-half, runs through Metz-en-Couture and Flins, then by Liermont, Longuevues, Thicourt-Bonely, Hancourt and Tertry to Lanchy, where it joins the French line.

Close on Messines.
British troops advanced on the front to the southeast and northeast of Peronne, capturing the towns of Hancourt, Sorelle-Grand and Metz-en-Couture, says the war office's announcement.

Fighting their way toward the left flank of the Germans' positions along the Canal du Nord from Havrincourt northward, the British penetrated the western part of Havrincourt wood, taking prisoners as they progressed.

In Flanders the British are pushing toward Messines near the southern end of the Messines ridge, and they advanced their line at night a short distance in the direction of the town.

North of the Basse canal on the Flanders front British patrols have made headway in the enemy positions in the vicinity of Cantelonne and Violaines.

Heavy Fighting.
Paris, Sept. 9.—On the front between the Somme and the Oise the French continue to press forward, overcoming the resistance of the German rear guard, according to the war office report. Pushing east of Ham, French troops have occupied the towns of Dury and Ollezy, more than three miles beyond Ham. North of the Allette the French have made a further advance, winning the entire lower forest of Coucy. North of the Vesle, where American troops have been advancing, there is no change in the situation.

Barisels, north of the Allette, was captured in heavy fighting. South of the river the French have taken Namet-Li-Posse, Conde Fort and Conde-Sur-Aisne.

Put Torch to Villages.
With the French armies in France, Sept. 9.—The retreat of the Germans during the last two days has assumed a strong resemblance to that of March of last year. The horizon at night glows with the light of conflagrations, for which, however, the Germans themselves are this time furnishing most of the fuel in their stores of supplies that the pressure of the allies has obliged the enemy either to leave on the spot or destroy.

The villages named in the reports were scarcely more than the ruins of the villages destroyed more than a year ago, with only a few frame buildings erected for the returning inhabitants.

Find Death Traps.
Death traps are being left behind by the enemy as they were last year. Noyon, for instance, is full of them. The engineering corps is still at work seeking them out and where possible, making them harmless. Noyon, however, is three-quarters destroyed by explosions of mines to which time fuses had been attached and by the intense shelling to which the town was subjected before the Germans were driven out of range.

Yanks Bring Up Big Guns.
With the American Army on the Vesle front, Sept. 9.—Menaced by a salient increasing in danger, the Germans began a withdrawal from the Vesle valley to the right of the Americans. On the west flank the Americans held firmly, while the French exerted sharp pressure on the rear, but there has developed a situation considerably different from that of the last few days in the region westward toward Soissons. The Germans fought more nearly in the spirit of their traditions, but slowly this continued to give way, leaving little doubt that the line from near Reims to that now along the Aisne would be quickly straightened.

Yanks in Tight Place.
The struggle is being made to the Americans' right and has placed them in a position where they are subject to a heavy enfilade, especially by the artillery. Despite desperate resistance they swung their line forward to its junction with the French, where the most determined resistance was encountered. More broken country offers better opportunities for defense, and the Germans have taken advantage of every hillside and ravine in placing their artillery and machine guns. The Americans were forced to face a deadly barrage, while barriers of gas were raised in every ravine down which they advanced. An equally destructive artillery response was made by the Americans, however, and the men already tried in previous engagements advanced steadily, clearing out the machine gun nests one after another.

Huns Die at Guns.
The Germans held their positions along a machine gun line stubbornly, many of them dying at their guns, but the total mortality was not great, since only machine gunners were left in the rear line. It is probable, however, that the German losses were large as a result of the counter artillery fire. Some 30 prisoners were brought in from that part of the sector on the Americans' right. Because of the better terrain the Germans can afford to retreat here more slowly and from their positions they can exact a higher price in return for their withdrawal. It is inevitable at the same time that they, too, must pay dearly. The result is a foregone conclusion, and the only question is that of the cost in men.

The Germans entailed the Americans, who on their part replied in kind and with interest, while the French supplemented their work with what must have been frightful consequences for the Germans.

Leader of Large Russian Faction Goes to Irkutsk.

Removes Most Troublesome Factional Differences Among Elements Opposing the Bolsheviks.

Washington, Sept. 9.—All military opposition against the Czechs in the Vladivostok district is deemed to be an early collapse, according to dispatches from Russia reaching the state department. The Czechs are being assisted by Russians in western Siberia, the dispatch adds, and General Horvath has left Vladivostok for a conference with the Czech leaders at Irkutsk.

Another dispatch from Consul Harris at Irkutsk, dated September 2, says that the Czechs are in power from Cheliakinsk and Ekaterinburg to Chita and also west as far as Siumen, Orenburg and Kazan.

Still another message, from a confidential source, says that connections have been established between the Czechs operating east of Karemaka and those cut off in the Balkan region, effecting the capture of Chita and Karemaka. Trains are now running between Irkutsk and the Onon river, it is added.

NOT OUR WAY, BUT UNCLE SAM'S

We did not, but mind you, the Government has issued the following rules regarding country weeklies:

"No publisher may continue subscriptions after three months after date of expiration, unless subscriptions are renewed and paid for.

"No publisher may give free copies of his paper, except for actual service rendered; except to camp libraries and huts or canteens of organizations recognized by the Government, such as the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., or K. of C.; except to the Library of Congress and other libraries which will agree to bind for permanent keeping; except to Government department libraries which use said publications in their work; and except for similar reasons."

Now then, we believe our patrons will not ask us nor expect us to continue their subscriptions after the allotted time as stated above, any more than they would go to their grocery man and ask him to sell them a sack of flour without the substitutes. It is not our way, but altogether Uncle Sam's, therefore we expect our subscribers to abide by it strictly and if they do not, we will be compelled to.

STUDENT-SOLDIERS.

The slogan of "Enlist and Go to College" is likely to be more than a mere slogan the first of October when the youths between the ages of 18 and 21 will be mobilized at more than 300 colleges in the U. S. for the purpose of being trained as Student-Soldiers.

By enlisting in this Student Army Training Corps, the young men receive a college education and at the same time be regular members of the Army and those who prove especially qualified are to be commissioned as officers, as 125,000 Commissioned officers are needed in the U. S. Army and it is said that 60,000 are available. To the boys inducted into this service, their subsistence, quarters, clothing and tuition will be provided by the Government, and in addition to this they will receive a private's pay in the army.

Certainly the offer has a two fold advantage in that the boys can learn the value of the rifle when trying to down a Hun—as well as the value of a little book learning in fighting the battles of life after the Hun is downed. It is indeed a glorious opportunity and one that our American youths can not well afford to miss.

THE FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN.

So it has come, a Fourth Liberty Loan Drive, in spite of the fact that so many people believed it would not. But it is without question that it is the universal hope that this will be the fourth and last loan and for this reason it should be all the more an incentive to make it go over the top. However the American people are so aroused over the necessity of winning the war by this time, they need no other incentives except to say "It will win the war."

The amount to be raised in this fourth issue, has not been made public as yet; at the same time committees are at work everywhere because they have had an inkling that this is to be larger than any of the previous issues, and to be raised in less time, from September 28 to October 19, is the date set.

From a standpoint of local pride as well as national pride, we are peculiarly anxious to see Breckinridge county come out with flying colors as she did in the Third Drive, and there is nothing to prevent our doing it if we will each determine in our minds that Breckinridge county WILL make up its quota. When we remember that the foremost young men of our com-assures an ample supply of oil for the refinery from its own wells. The farsightedness of the management in securing a ready to hand refining plant, at a reasonable figure may be appreciated when it is realized that under present war conditions the construction of a new plant would have been impossible. As the work of transferring the plant is now going on, under the competent direction of Thomas M. Coyle, who has been secured to operate the refinery, the McComb Oil Company will soon be turning the product of its wells into refined products. The establishment of the plant at Torrent will be followed by the construction of an additional plant for the manufacture of lubricating oils and paraffine wax.

The enlarged scope of the company's business, which now comprises every essential branch of the industry has been followed by a change in the name to that of the McComb Producing and Refining Company. During the month of August several new wells have been brought in on the Adams lease which are producing from 75 to 100 barrels a day. It is significant also to note that not a dry hole has as yet been encountered. With the prospect of increasing the number of new wells to forty or more within the next six months the McCombs is justified in believing that at least $1,000,000, worth of oil will be sold from the property within a year. Adding to this the profits of refining and marketing in its own cars, it easily takes rank as the foremost independent oil company in Kentucky. It must be remembered that the immense acreage as yet undeveloped contain possibilities of future profitable expansion which can hardly be calculated. It includes over 17,000 acres in the Eastern oil belt.

As a natural result the stock of the McCombs Producing and Refining Company has advanced with its continuous progress. It is now held at $1.50 a share, which figure it will shortly be advanced and at this price offers a most attractive investment. Under the able executive management of Abner Renick, the President of the company and the field management of J. C. McCombs, there has been an enormous increase in the total value the company's holdings and this has been accomplished without jeopardizing the safety of the shareholders interests. Further expansion however requires an additional amount of working capital and this will be supplied by the sale of additional stock yet retained in the treasury.

The office of the President from which additional information can be obtained is at 1909-12 Inter-Southern Building, Louisville, Kentucky.

Bible Saves Life.

During the progress of most wars stories gain currency of how some soldier's life was saved because the bullet which hit him first went through the Bible he was carrying on his breast. There were several such instances reported in the Civil war and perhaps all of them were true. The first to come from France is that of William R. Wilson, nineteen years of age, from Newcastle, Pa. He was carrying a Bible and a trench mirror in his pocket. A German bullet hit him both, penetrating only enough to scratch his skin and do no damage whatsoever though it came from a sharpshooter and was well aimed. Books, especially Bibles, are evidently very efficient breast-plates.

MAN NOT HARD TO ANALYZE

Observation Will Enable One to Determine the Qualities Which Will Make Him Valuable.

The qualities that go to make up a man are tremendously complex and yet it is possible by close scrutiny and keen observation to analyze a man and understand him more clearly than he sees himself. There are certain cardinal mental and physical characteristics which can be determined by a visual examination made by an expert. In like manner he can determine the mainspring of the man as exemplified in what we ordinarily consider the various parts of his will, or those factors which govern his actions. The practical application of the studies taken together with his experience and history is then apparent. Knowing his various physical and mental characteristics and his experience, we know what sort of work he is able to do. Knowing his will and what might be termed spiritual characteristics, we know what he will do, provided surrounding circumstances permit. With this in mind we would place each one of our present or new employees at such work as he is best able to do, and we see that this is not necessarily that which he has always done, although in general it does have a more or less close relation with that.—Industrial Management.

YANKEES GIVE HUNS
CHRISTIAN BURIAL

Mercy Is Shown to Dead and Wounded Enemy by Americans.

Paris.—The spirit which prompted America's entrance into the world war perhaps cannot be better exemplified than the way in which German wounded who fall into American hands are cared for. It is likewise evidenced in the Christian burial given German dead and in the care taken by the Americans to properly mark their graves.

For while the creed of the American soldier is to give no quarter in battle, those wounded are given every consideration when they call out that they have surrendered. Then it is that mercy is shown.

In a little cemetery near Meaux there are now graves of about thirty Germans, each of whom was given a Christian burial and each grave was marked with a neat black cross, upon which the name of the German was inscribed. A few yards away is another cemetery—that of French and Americans. The only difference in the manner of burial is that the American and French graves are marked with white crosses.

Moreover, caretakers of the cemetery, whenever they have placed flowers on the graves of fallen heroes of the allied armies, have also strewn the ground covering the enemy's soldiers with flowers. The cemetery itself is as neatly looked after as that of the Americans and French.

PIG IN HER BEDROOM

Animal Was Ill and Mrs. McMillan Cared for It There.

Mrs. Alex. McMillan, prominent Knoxville woman, has a fine, healthy lot of pigs, and was most proud of them until one seemed to feel a little unwilling.

This infant pig immediately enlisted her sympathies and she announced that nothing was too good for friend pig, so she prepared a bed in her room and took more care of it than if it had been a star boarder.

The pig was delicate and particular about the way its food was administered, so she very carefully prepared milk for it in a bottle and saw that it was fed in all the style that was at her command.

SINGERS WEAR GAS

MASKS AT THE FRONT

Versatility of the "Tin Hat" Is Demonstrated by Y. M. C. A. Worker.

New York.—American singers who are assisting in the entertainment provided for the American soldiers overseas by the Y. M. C. A. are wearing gas masks.

Baritone and tenors in the American sector need only the "helmet" to slip their nosebags, because if they do not do it quickly they will be out of luck, according to Albert Widerhold, who sang in Dr. Parkhurst's church, Madison avenue, New York. Widerhold was a member of the first Liberty quartette sent to France to sing for the soldiers in the Y. M. C. A. huts.

"No one is allowed up there without a helmet and gas mask," he said, referring to the front line trenches. "As you pass a certain line you see a sign 'Gas mask at the alert,' which means you get it up on your chest, unbutton the clasp and have it ready to put on in six to eight seconds. All the Y men over here want to get up to the front. A lot of them got there. I take off my hat to those chaps."

The versatility of the tin hat is revealed in Widerhold's description of his sleeping quarters. "My main trouble," he said, "was to get my tin hat hung in just the right place to catch the drip, for the roof had not been repaired since the last bombardment. That part taken care of and with one blanket pulled up to keep the rats from running over my face, I slept pretty well."

GET LEAVE TO MEET KIN

Soldiers Allowed to See Relatives Returned From Germany.

Soldiers whose close relatives—specifically father, mother, children, brother, sister or wife—have been repatriated after imprisonment in German territory will be given special leave of absence to meet them on their return, according to a ruling of the French war department. They have only to present an attestation of the mayor of their home town that the facts are as represented.

What this means to the Poilu can well be imagined, since some of the repatriates just now coming through the Swiss border have been prisoners almost since the beginning of the war. If the soldier had to wait his turn for his regular allowance of leave there is no telling how long it would be before the reunion could take place.

HUN MAN POWER IS DWINDLING

Germans Fail to Keep Up Supply of Effectives.

BEST TROOPS ARE SHATTERED

Enemy Patches Up Worn Out Divisions With Inferior Men—Now Facing Endless Stream of First-Class Fighting Men From America on Western Front—History of a Division in German Army Traced.

The question of effectives today holds the first place in the general discussion of the war. It has become particularly alarming for the central powers, since, it has been shown, they have nothing to oppose to the fresh masses of American troops which arrive each day. To make up the inevitable difference they can only ask for greater efforts from the units that are still intact and employ all sorts of expedients to fill the gaps made by their terrible losses.

How can these great losses be accounted for and what were the contributing factors in the systematic wearing away of the great German divisions? Apart from the highly efficient intelligence bureaus of the allied general staff, Swiss sources offer the next best opportunity for learning facts about the German army which are generally not published. From one of these sources was traced the history since the beginning of the year of one of the famous German divisions, the One Hundred and Ninety-seventh. This brief history may be taken as an example of the overwork to which the German troops are subjected and allow us to form an estimate of their losses.

One Division Traced.

Formed in June, 1916, this division remained on the eastern front till February, 1918. After losing many of its best soldiers the division was brought to the western front shortly before the beginning of the March offensive without being in any way re-enforced, certain of its regiments containing companies of only 100 men. In May it occupied a section of the Chemin des Dames sector, there representing that type of division which the Germans call "front divisions."

Its participation in the attack of May 26 has been clearly traced; during the night of the 26th it sent out numerous patrols to protect the work of constructing bridges over the Ailette and at the same time to be within a useful distance to participate in the attack on the Chemin des Dames. The storming divisions then replaced it at the moment when the artillery preparation began.

In the evening of the 27th the division returned to Grandelain, north of the Ailette, which it left again the next day for the Veste in conformity with the movement of the troops which preceded it. On the evening of the 28th it was at Vanherthou, and arrived at Cersault during the night. From that moment on, account of the extension of the divisions which preceded it, it began to send units into the first line to fill in the gaps. On the 29th it was at Joumagnies and on the 30th at Bruyeres.

June 1 found the entire division in the lines relieving tired troops; in fact, it had entered the battle. It attacked at Bonnes, then marched to Hussieres, where it encountered French and American troops and underwent cruel losses. It was there, to the south of Chezy, that this division met the Americans, to whom it yielded Veully and Hussieres.

Lost One-Third of Effectives.

Since the One Hundred and Ninety-seventh division's entry into the battle on June 1 its losses have been very heavy, and are estimated at about a third of the effectives of June 2 and 50 per cent of those of June 5.

Such a system of wear and tear employed for such a long period has wrought havoc in the ranks of the German army. The effectives have suffered heavily and every possible means has been employed to obtain combatants with which to fill in the ranks. The anticipated calling up of the youngest classes took place some time ago, almost at the outset of the offensive. The Germans have already sent to the front the greatest part of the 1919 class.

According to the official bulletin of the Fourth German army, issued last May, in order to augment the depleted divisions it has been found necessary to employ men of the auxiliary services in the fighting ranks. It has also been established that all Germans drafted out are replaced by men of the auxiliary services.

There is still another method which the Germans finally resorted to. They have had to break up and dissolve whole regiments and, being unable to reorganize the units which had suffered too heavy losses and to re-enforce those that were still of some value, they decided on the fusion of numerous regiments.

It has been said that the strongest walls would crack if in order to fill up its holes and previous other holes were made and under pressure of a violent shock would crumble altogether. Critics point out that the allies will be in a position to deliver this violent shock when enough Americans have arrived in France.

Veteran Dies in the Harness.

Having entered the United States navy in 1878, serving on many ships and many stations, Chief Carpenter Alonzo C. Burroughs died at his home in Norfolk, Va., on April 16, as a sailor, would want to die, in active service. Although he had a long and honorable record of service, and had attained the age of sixty-six years, Mr. Burroughs came back into the service at the outbreak of the war and was placed on duty at the Norfolk navy yard. He was made a ship's carpenter in 1879, and 20 years later, while on duty at Newport News, was made a chief. His service included cruises on the Monongahela, Vermont, Independence, Franklin, Lancaster, Yankee, Iowa and Texas.

Britain's New Star.

Opportunity is not confined to the United States. Some of Great Britain's greatest men rose from the ranks. The newest star to shed its effulgence over the empire is Lord Beaverbrook, who has a seat in the cabinet as minister of information.

He first amassed a fortune in Canada, went to England eight years ago, was elected to parliament, was knighted under Premier Asquith, and is now one of the brightest and most influential members of the George cabinet.
